

The Orria chair is the fruit of a meeting of minds and expertise: the designer, Patrick Jouin, the craftsman, the Atelier de Recherche et de Création at Mobilier National, and the manufacturer, Alki. The rich dialogue between these different participants and their breadth and depth of focus guided this project, which was developed at the request of the Bibliothèque Nationale de France for the Oval Reading Room. Today, in keeping with the BNF's principle of inclusiveness, Alki is now offering a reworked version of the Orria chair. The Orria chair is distinct for its pure lines and unique, exacting design. The chair's backrest is in bentwood, which echoes its flowing and seamless contours. Its technical complexity lies in the discretion and sheerness of its lines.
